This was a great guide! Honestly, the SIFT is mostly logic and problem solving. I'm a Cadet studying Russian Language and Literature, never flew before, and barely skimmed through the FM for helicopter flight. It's not as difficult as I thought it would be. I only studied about four or five days for it because I was in a rush to turn in my packet. However, I'm pretty sure that without this guide I wouldn't have done nearly as well. If you're planning on taking the SIFT, buy this! Although keep in mind that there are some small grammar and spelling errors but nothing that should detract from the learning experience. Section 1: Don't think, just click as fast as you can. It's free points so just capitalize on it. I was able to get them all, pretty sure I made a mistake on a few, but that didn't really hurt me. Section 2: Honestly, if you spend more than 10 or 15 seconds on any, just guess and move on. There are easy and hard ones dispersed in between. Try to get through them. The SIFT study guide ones are easy as hell so they aren't a good indicator for you. Section 3: Study, study, study. Again, this portion is more logical than you think. If your bird is going down and it has engaged autorotation, what do you do in order to not crash? Using base knowledge of flight controls, you should be able to answer it. But there are some questions that they rip right out of the book as well, so if you've really sat down for a week and did nothing but study the FM, you will pass with flying colors. Section 4: The study guide was a HUGE help, pretty sure I got perfect on it. Bare in mind that the test itself has really terrible resolution for the planes so you have to look very carefully.
